Shadow Layer tab

Option	Description
Shadow layer	This is a legacy but useful option that activates extra divs in the site layout template file that can be used for styling purposes. Not all site layout templates (selected under the "Theme" tab) support this feature.
Main shadow start	The tag  and the contents of this textarea are placed just below the top of the HTML body
Main shadow end	The closing tag of id="main-shadow" and the content of this textarea are placed just before the body closing tag.
Header shadow start	The tag  and the contents of this textarea are placed just before the page-header divs.
Header shadow end	The closing tag of id="header-shadow" and the contents of this textarea are placed just after the page-header divs.
Middle shadow start	The tag  and the contents of this textarea are placed just before the middle of the page divs.
Middle shadow end	The closing tag of id="middle-shadow" and the contents of this textarea are placed just after the middle of the page divs.
Center shadow start	The tag  and the contents of this textarea are placed just before the center-column div.
Center shadow end	The closing tag of id="center-shadow" and the contents of this textarea are placed just after the center-column div.
Footer shadow start	The tag  and the contents of this textarea are placed just before the page footer div.
Footer shadow end	The closing tag of id="footer-shadow" and the contents of this textarea are placed just after the page-footer div.
Module (box) shadow start	The tag  and the contents of this textarea are placed just before each module div (a module in Tiki parlance is a container like a Bootstrap panel).
Module (box) shadow end	The closing tag of class="box-shadow" and the contents of this textarea are placed just after each module div.
